Principal's Message

You, the Class of '61, were one of the early classes in the new Saint Mary's, one of the first to try out the new buildings and the campus. You have had to make many adjustments in your high school career as Rams of Saint Mary's. Many of these adjustments came in your senior year, just at the time when you were expected to show leadership to the classes below you. You were given a double duty, and you have done well.

In your senior year you have given fine example in many cases. Your big year opened with many drastic changes under your new principal. You accepted these changes in a manner that has made me very proud of you. Your fine cooperation has made it easy for others to follow you.

Rams of '61, you have been taught well; you have learned well. You have been given a foundation for the future, but it has been merely a foundation. As new buildings on your campus have grown above their solid foundations, your lives must grow. You alone can build on the solid footing you have received, and build you must.

You will need help in the building of your lives. You have been trained where to turn when you need help. The patroness of your school and your Mother will keep helping arms around you if you will allow her. She will guide you, one step at a time, through many obstacles to your ultimate goal, your eternal happiness. My prayers will be with you that through your lives you may continue in the fine spirit you have shown in your days at Saint Mary's.

God love you,

H. Everett Chandler, O.F.M.

Foreword

In the past year the world has witnessed the advent of a new and revolutionary decade. Missiles have been built; rockets have been fired; satellites have been launched. In the variety of goals that have been achieved, the new has been replacing and rejuvenating the old in a constant cycle of progress.

We students at Saint Mary's know that the progress of our school, which is a part of this changing world, is dependent upon the revolution in ideas and plans which can ultimately mold our living and shape our future. Therefore, we must keep pace in the march of time and look to the morrow for the new ideas, events, and changes it holds for us. During the school year of 1960-61, many changes have taken place at Saint Mary's. We have a new principal, fourteen new faculty members, a new gym and chapel; and so we have been provided with the means to attain the finest and most progressive education possible.

As our high school years come to an end, we, the seniors of Saint Mary's, take a step of consequence into our future. We enter a troubled and restive world, four and a half billion years old and yet, in a way, totally new to us; we step into a world in which the ideals of charity and truth have been charred by the blasts of rockets promising nuclear destruction. Sonic booms and atomic blasts are grim reminders of the fact that the cold war is warming up. Ironically enough, the countries of the world fight desperately for the power which will insure their security and peace.

We, the Class of '61, go forth, armed with the years of mental, physical, moral and spiritual training which we have received at the new Saint Mary's. May we give as we have received in order that we might help restore to the world Peace, Charity, and Truth. Each graduate leaves Saint Mary's recalling these familiar words of Saint Francis which indicate the means by which personal as well as political peace may be achieved by all:

"Lord, make us instruments of Your peace.
Where there is hatred, let us sow love . . .

Chris Compton
Co-editor, 1961 Cauldron.

Lord, make us instruments of Your peace.
Where there is hatred, let us sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon;
Where there is doubt, faith;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is darkness, light;
And where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master, grant
That we may not so much seek
To be consoled as to console,
To be understood as to understand,
To be loved as to love;
For it is in giving that we receive;
It is in pardoning that we are pardoned;
And it is in dying that we are born
To eternal life.

Freshman Class Officers: Richard Garcia, President; Dennis Risso, Treasurer; Thomas Farnsworth, Sergeant-at-Arms; Loretta Canclini, Vice-President; Susan Damos, Secretary.

As we, the Freshman Class, look back on the past year, we can see much of which to be proud. When we descended upon Saint Mary's last fall, we had already broken our first school record; we were the largest class ever to be enrolled at Saint Mary's.

Our first major project was the Chocolate Drive. Having sold more of the "World's Finest Chocolate" than any other class, we made big plans to enjoy a free day in the spring. After such success in the Chocolate Drive, we felt we could not afford to lose our splendid salesmanship record; so freshmen, following the lead of Kathleen Lagorio, went all the way to win in the Fall Magazine Drive.

Our next efforts were devoted to hard work on the freshman homecoming parade float under the co-chairmanship of Susan Bitterman and David Garafolo. It was twice in two weeks that we put together our fine looking float, "Goal Gazing Greenhorns." After having first assembled it backwards, we wrecked and reassembled it in time to tie the seniors for top honors. We rode our twenty-five dollar winning float down Pacific Avenue with our hardest and most devoted worker, Dennis Minahen, standing aboard.

Report cards presented the first threat to our class prestige. None of us will ever know how we managed to live through that trying day of first high school report cards. But we came out on top again, wedging the Honor and Citizenship Cup from the Sophomores' grasp by a narrow two per cent margin.

The Freshman Assembly, held on March sixteenth, was a great success as was also our Charity Spring Lunch. The rest of the year went by in a whirl: games, dances, activities, and semester exams.

And so we have completed but the first of the four years of our high school education and have already come to know and love the Green and White of our Saint Mary's.

Sophomores

The light of a beautiful Indian summer morning streamed through the windows of Saint Mary's upon the Sophomore Class, looking forward to another memorable high school year. Though we were convinced that we would never be able to study again after those long, lazy summer days, we found ourselves immediately caught up in a whirl of homework and activities.

Round and round we went, from house to store and back to house again. The reason? Our Chocolate Drive! As a result of our enthusiastic efforts, we were awarded with a trip to see the performance of "Ben Hur." Our next successful effort as a class was largely due to the time spent by Mike Scriven and his helpers in the building of our Homecoming Float, "Cup of Goals." The beautiful sun-colored cup which stood against a background of myriads of white flowers effectively symbolized the ends for which we are striving.

It was before we knew it that February and a very successful Sophomore Assembly had come and gone. Then soon after Easter, under the supervision of Larry McGuire, our president, we climaxed the year with a festive Sophomore Class Dance.

Athletically, we had a wonderful year. The only word to describe our JV teams is "terrific!" Like the class itself, they are hard-working individuals, cooperating to form one flourishing fellowship.

Scholastically, we achieved a multitude of honors. The creative talents of sophs such as co-editors Kathy Canlis and Vicky Devlin were used to compile many fine editions of the Kettle. The inclusion of sophomores on the Cauldron staff was an innovation at Saint Mary's this year.

Hoping that we have given some of the light that was ours that September morning to the future sophomore classes, we, the Class of '63, look back upon our year with happy but nostalgic memories. Yet there is not one of us who does not eagerly look forward to the prospect and privilege of being an upperclassman.

Junior Classes

Junior Class Officers: Jon Rider, President; Lenora Filippini, Vice-President; Paul Paul, Treasurer; Mary Lynn Dick, Secretary; Bill Fields, Sargeant-at-Arms.

No sooner had the juniors begun to renew old acquaintances than we were thrown into the hurried, complicated system known as the school curriculum. Our new classes proved to be challenging and lively; take, for instance, our chemistry class. Experimenting with barium oxide provided hazardous but interesting situations for John Musto to record in his notes, while Mary Ann Martin came to the fantastic conclusion that her oxide contained over two hundred per cent oxygen!

Momentous decisions were made October 10 at our first class meeting, presided over by Jon Rider. We determined not to rest on the laurels won in our freshman and sophomore years, and we carried out that resolution by our wholehearted response to every school activity.

The first opportunity to prove ourselves soon provided itself on October 21. The Chocolate Drive was on! With a "How-Many-Bars-Do-You-Want" slogan, we sold more than our quota of the "World's Finest," and placed a homeroom among the winners. We will not soon forget the hours of work and worry spent on the construction of our Homecoming float. Two great gladiators were depicted as riding in our '62 chariot, with a spirited ram pulling it towards a victory torch.

Jeff Gomes was production manager for a hilarious rendition of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" which we presented at our Assembly, December 1. Carl Thompson will long be remembered for his superb impersonation of old Scrooge.

After a well-deserved vacation for the Christmas holidays, we returned to participate in a solemn and beautiful ceremony at which we received our junior rings. This impressive ceremony, during which our rings were blessed, was the first to be held in the new Saint Mary's chapel.

Handsome tuxedos, gorgeous formals and melodious music characterized the memorable night which highlighted our school year. For on that evening of May 5 in the lavishly decorated Country Club, we held our Junior Senior Prom. Those fun-filled hours will long remain a part of the happy memories of our high school years.

As we busily began preparations for the breakfast at which we honored the graduating seniors, many of us reflected with pride and satisfaction upon the accomplishments of our junior year. We realized that these achievements have provided us with the experience and spirit upon which we can build the milestone of our high school life, our senior year.

"Let us sow joy . . ."

Hello Week

Say! What's going on here! Oh, I know. The principal is finally giving us cell numbers. Thank-you. Now, let's see what this thing is supposed to say!

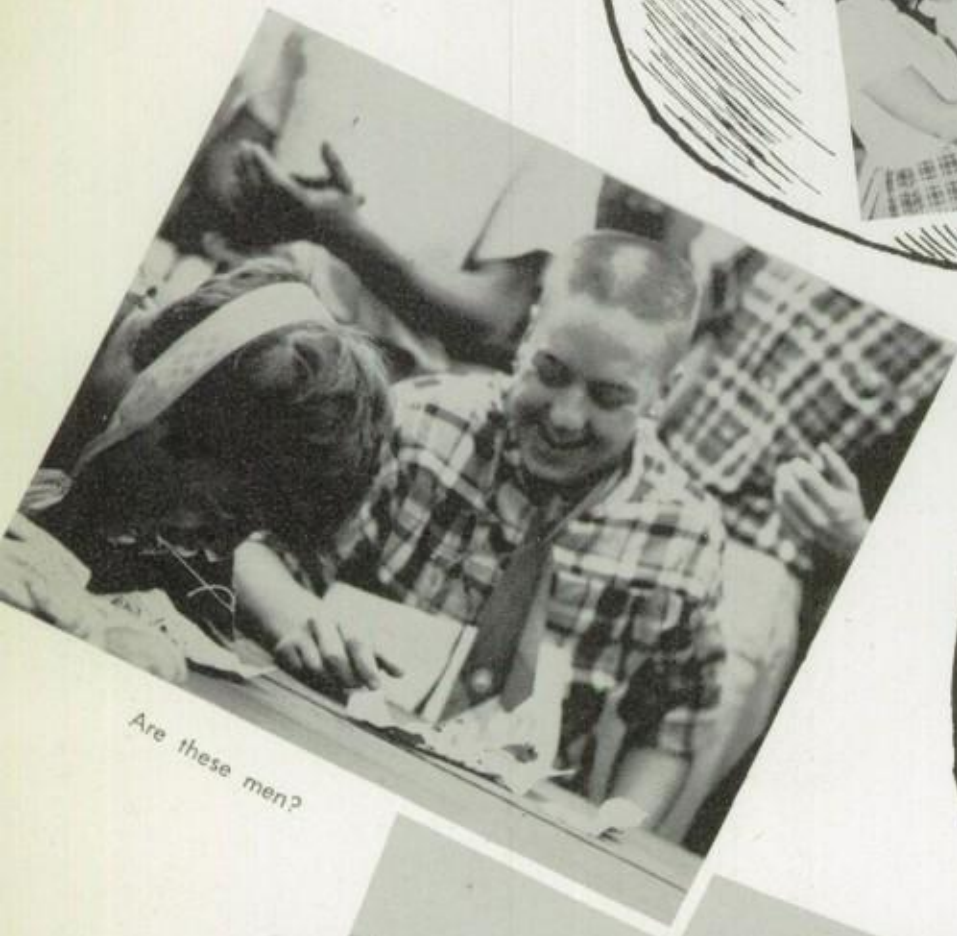

"HELLO,

My name is George C."

Do they think I'm an idiot or something? I'm sure I know my own name.

What's that, Sister? We have to WEAR these things? How rank can you get? I'm not going to wear this. Well, all right—since you put it that way. I think I just might wear it.

Well, here I am walking down the hall with "HELLO, My name is George C." on my button and—say, that blonde's name is Sue M. This "dog license" idea has its good points.

Are these men?

"The World's Finest" men at work.

Brotherly love.

The freshmen wearing hats of every description paraded before a hilarious student body.

Freshman Hat Day

What a day, September 29, 1960 Freshman Hat Day. It seemed infinitely long for the frightened freshmen, so short for the seniors. Amid the array of spectacular hats, mismatched shoes, and humble signs reading, "I am a lowly freshman," the voices of the nervous freshmen could be heard chanting the degrading poem, "Almighty Seniors." Unfortunately, the newcomers didn't always know who the seniors were.

There were hats which one could eat, throw, or just stare at in stupefaction. Big hats, little hats, long hats, skinny hats, and tall hats adorned the victims, each hat symbolizing the foolishness, greenness and otherwise lowliness of the poor freshman. However, this day of utter confusion and dismay had its reward for Pat Torbett and Carl Mayer who wore the two most original hats of the day. The following evening the seniors presented a dance,

"Booties and the Beasts," as a reception for the freshmen who were then officially accepted as part of the Student Body at Saint Mary's High School. These two days the freshmen will never forget, for they were the days that actually marked the beginning of the spirit of the Freshman Class.

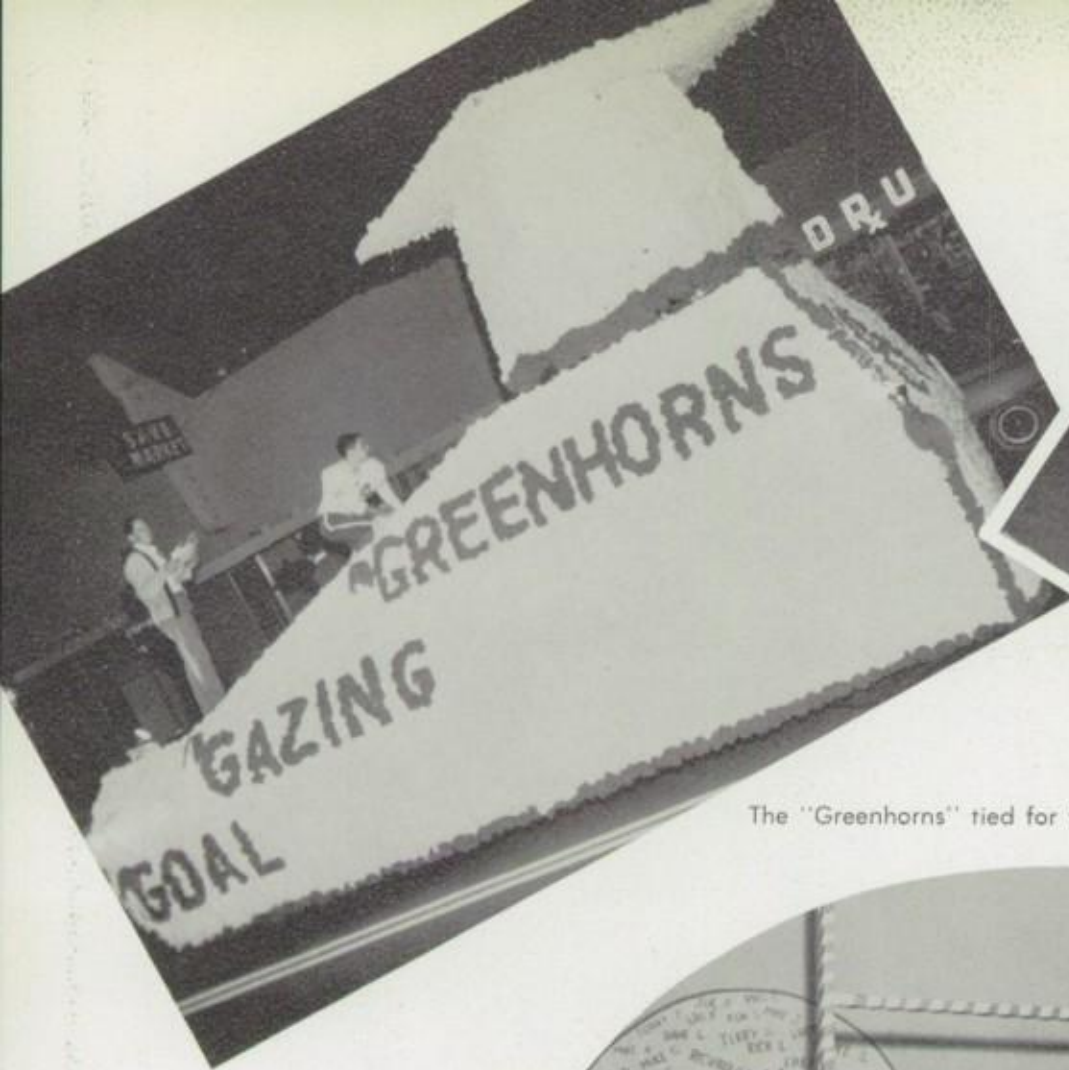

Small but mighty.

In January all the students of Saint Mary's participated in a Day of Recollection.

The leaders of the Y.C.S. hold a joint meeting with their Chaplain Father Bruno.

A leadership group, presided over by Jeff Gomes, made plans for the first sectional meeting of the Saint Mary's Y.C.S. groups which was held on February fifth.

What is "Y.C.S."? It took several of us four days at the Study Week in San Francisco last August to find out!

By the way, is that your best side, Father Bruno?

After a tour of the new convent, the Sodality pose in the sisters' chapel with their moderator, Sister Edward.

Reorganized and revitalized, Saint Mary's Sodality has become one of the school's most active clubs this year. During the first two months our ranks increased from ten to forty strong. Every member has generously contributed to such projects as the preparing of Christmas and Thanksgiving baskets for the needy and the giving of help to the sick and the aged. The climax of the first semester's activities was the successful benefit dance, the Saints' and Sinners' Ball.

Fifteen of the members spent three days in January at a retreat in Carmichael, while later in the year others, accompanied by our Moderator, Sister Edward, spent a Day of Recollection in San Rafael. Sister Edward has epitomized the spirit of the Sodality by saying: "The girls have found that helping others can be very satisfying and a lot of fun at the same time."

Knights Of The Altar

This organization, moderated by Father Campion, includes boys from every class who promote altar service at the school Masses. In order to raise money for the purchase of Mass vestments, the Knights of the Altar bought a pool table which is already producing a moderate income. A beautiful altar which the boys have skillfully constructed is one of the many accomplishments of this new organization. The Knights of the Altar have helped considerably to secure the spiritual bond among the students of Saint Mary's.

"For it is in giving that we receive . . ."

To my brother
 (Lunches)
 Dad Bless you always

Our first impressions of Saint Mary's were formed that September day when we, a class of one hundred and seventy over-awed freshmen, began our high school life. We were filled with mixed sentiments of wonder and fear. The beautiful landscaping gave an air of vitality and friendliness to the grounds, while the formidable-appearing upperclassmen seemed to hover over us for reasons we did not at first understand.

That first exciting year was filled with the bustle of many activities which were new to us: the Boxing Carnival preparations, the sports events, the chocolate sales, the Christmas bazaar. Perhaps the most difficult times were the hours we spent studying to keep up those grades. We spent a good portion of our time dodging the fearsome "Almighty Seniors," who felt it their duty to employ us in small tasks even long after initiation day had come to a close. However, towards the year we began to feel a measure of self-confidence; we no longer trembled at the approach of a senior. We were informed that such a lack of intrepidity was a symptom of becoming a sophomore.

Sure enough, the following September, we started attending classes as the "Studious Sophomores." Since we had become somewhat adjusted to high school life, our second year was more relaxed than the preceding one. Saint Mary's had its first Homecoming in our sophomore year, and Muffy Blackmun was crowned the beautiful queen of the festivities. That was the year of our first float, "Tinkerbell's Fantasy," and our first dance, "Avril en Paris." Besides acquiring the sophomore privilege of sponsoring a dance, we also enjoyed the acknowledgement that we were no longer the youngest group of the high school crowd. But we became anxious for the school year of nineteen fifty-nine to come to a close, for we began to anticipate the novelty of being upperclassmen.

Traditionally, summer activities began and ended in such a flurry that we barely had time to catch our breath when we realized we were juniors. At last we could also include chemistry in our schedule. We could work in the lab under the watchful eye of Sister Bonaventure who generously arranged transportation to the Emergency Hospital for Cecilia Hermosillo and other members of the Purple Heart Society unable to provide for themselves. A few of us had Mr. Arbios for speech. Dewey may not remember much about his public speaking course, but the other members of the class will never forget his rendition of The Little Match Girl. Although we did not achieve academic honors, we did have our share of successes: a beautiful float entitled "Junior Memories," our December assembly, Pop Reads the Christmas Carol, and our Junior Senior Prom, "Invitation to a Dream." Who of us will forget the solemn feeling that we shared at the Senior Farewell Assembly in June when we became the seniors? Would we be able to fill the graduates' places?

Seniors at last, our final year of school, "almighty" and all the rest . . . However, now that we had finally reached our goal, we did not feel the complete rapture and enchantment that we had anticipated three years earlier. We constructed our float and worked on the chocolate sales as we had done every year in the past. But this year we did not accomplish these things for the sole purpose of winning; we worked because these activities meant for us our last opportunities to participate in school functions that we had so long taken for granted. Studies this year also appeared to us in a new light. They had now become a means of maturing and preparing us to better cope with life. Some of us look forward to new adventures: marriage, the religious life, or a job away from home. In preparing for our futures there were applications to rush off and college board exams to take and long days of waiting for the results which would decide our professions.

And now as graduation rapidly approaches, we reflect on how much we have received and how little we have given. We have fond memories of our high school years and we realize that we did not make these memories alone. They were made by our teachers and fellow students at Saint Mary's. Now these memories are ours; we shall keep them with us always.

To a real great guy. We have had loads of fun this year and hope I will see you after during the summer. Remember all the good times we have had this year and on our date especially. It almost cost us our lives, but I guess it was worth it. I hope you get out of the trouble you're in now. I wish you all the success in the world and everything you try, I hope is a success and want you ^{get} ~~don't~~. This summer don't get into too much trouble, that you can't get out of. We will have to double sometime, maybe up to the ranch. It is really sharp. All the luck in the world with the girls (I mustn't forget them). Be good and I'll miss you next year.

Love

Elaine

P.S. Don't forget to come over.

- Vince

It was one of the luckiest days of my life when you came thru our History Class door at the beginning of the semester. I've told you a lot of things that I haven't told my best girlfriends. I'm going to miss you next year. I hope you don't get in ~~too~~ too much trouble next year without me. You know I have to guide you with my good example. I hope I hear from you not only if this summer but even when you're out in the big bad world. Senora Solly Filippini.

Vincent,

Deserved! Bobbie!

I don't really know how to thank you for everything you have done for me. We have really had lots of fun this semester.

I will never forget the Prom, especially the lie, and the surprise birthday cake at the Ranch. The times when we would tattle down the ave. and tank at everyone. The day we ditched school and went to Lodi Lake, and found the graveyard. Vince, I guess I'll never forget any of that.

We have really gotten to be great friends and I hope there is nothing,
(turn to P. 52, for continuation)

Deserved! Barb.

Dear Vince,

I don't know really how to put what I want to say into words but I will do my best. We have been rather good friends this past year and we have had a lot of fun in Geopolitics but I hope our friendship will not end now. I hope we will still run into each other now and then and for many years to come still communicate with each other. I sure will miss you next year. We have always had our little jokes together and had lots of fun. We sure did make Elaine mad a times didn't we? But she is a real good kid. She sure has given Fred the run around. Just think next year you will be in college someplace and I will still be in this queer school. You lucky dog. I'll bet you will have a blast in college and before you know it you will meet the right girl and get hitched. Well lots of luck in your future years and I hope you will remember me like I will always remember you.
